

FINDING A MONOLOGUE: GUIDE TO CHARACTERS

This guide is designed to assist students in finding characters in plays using gender, age, race and/or nationality as criteria. There is no guarantee that a character has a monologue or even enough lines to form a monologue; that is up to the performer to determine. The plays that are included are in the Helmke Library collection and have been published since 1960. They are chosen from collections of new plays, plays by women writers, prize-winning plays, and plays that have been produced at IPFW. This guide will be updated on a regular basis.

FIELD	DESCRIPTION
Character Name	As given by the playwright in the list of characters, with the exception that if other names are used in the text, including last names, nicknames, pseudonyms, etc., those names are included in parentheses. Note: Characters who do not have lines even though they are listed by the playwright and characters who are seen on stage but are not in the list of characters are not included in this guide.
Gender
Age	If no age is given for a character but can be reasonably determined by the text, it will be included; otherwise the columns are left blank. The first number is the youngest age in the range for the character; the second number is the oldest age. If the two numbers are the same, the playwright or the text has given that as the character's specific age. When the author gives an age range such as "30s", it is shown as "30 39". If the age range includes descriptive words as in "early 20s", "mid 40s" or "late 60s", the range would be shown as "20 24", "43 47", or "66 69". There may be exceptions to these ranges.
Race	Taken from the playwright's description of the character or from the text where it may be either specifically stated or generally implied. If the Race is not indicated and cannot be determined, none is given.
Nationality	Taken from the playwright's description of the character or from the text where it may be either specifically stated or generally implied. If the Nationality is not indicated and cannot be determined, none is given.
Play
Author
Call Number	If the call number includes an asterick (*) at the end, the play is found in a collection.
